Debra Green returns to Medical Mutual

Cleveland - After being away from Medical Mutual for a year-and-a-half, Debra Green has returned as the director of Community Outreach. Green rejoins Medical Mutual from the Cleveland Clinic where she served as director of Community Outreach for the Taussig Cancer Institute. While at the Clinic, Green was responsible for the development and execution of outreach programs and activities with particular focus on assisting the underserved community in all aspects of cancer care. At Medical Mutual, Green will be responsible for developing and executing all Community Outreach programs and will serve as principal corporate representative in community affairs.

In 1984, Green began her career with Medical Mutual in Customer Service, then as a generalist in Human Resources and later joined Corporate Communications as senior community relations specialist. She was named manager of Community Relations within a year of joining the department.

Green and her husband Archie reside in Aurora and are the parents of two grown children.
